Mark Hendricks, a former assistant coach at James Madison University and a Deptford High School graduate, has been named the new football coach at Kingsway High School.

Superintendent James J. Lavender made the announcement Thursday.

Hendricks replaces longtime coach Tony Barchuk, who announced his retirement last month. Barchuk began his career in 1979 and left as one of only 10 coaches in South Jersey football history to win 200 games. He finished 206-155-5, leading the program to the South Jersey Group 2 title in 2001 with an 18-14 victory over Hammonton.

He also directed the Dragons to sectional finals in 1994 and 1995 in Group 2 as well as 2012 in Group 4. Only Florence coach Joe Frappolli (427) has coached more games in South Jersey history.
